RIDEOUT'S WIFE BARES WILD AND SCANDALOUS TALK POLICE HUNT FOR BODY HALTS AS AUTO IS TRACED

Mother, Near Collapse, Tells How Youth Broke Under Strain of Nursing Sick Baby

Twenty-four hours before the finding on T wharf of two suicide notes and the taxicab of William H. Rideout, 25, son of E. B. Rideout, radio weather forecaster, the youth drove his wife aimlessly and at break-neck speed about Brighton discussing insurance policies in an incoherent manner, it was learned today.

For more than an hour, according to the boy's mother, young Rideout's wife sat beside him in his automobile pleading with him to slow his automobile down, expecting that at any moment she and her husband would be killed or seriously injured.

Mrs. Rideout said that for three days her son had been acting as though he were on the verge of a complete nervous breakdown brought on by the lack of sleep. This was caused by the serious illness of his two-year-old son, who is suffering from a serious attack of the whooping cough, she declared.

The missing youth's parents were clinging to the slim hope today that he was still alive. His father, E. B. Rideout, during a personal investigation into the son's disappearance, discovered that the automobile bearing the registration Mark 7114 had been left by young Rideout until he finished his night's work as a taxicab operator.

The discovery that the automobile was missing caused harbor police to suspend their dragging operations for the body and to turn to the radio and teletype communica-

Love Dies at Gunpoint

3 Held in $30,000 Bail in Teacher's Wooer Holdup

Romance, flourishing for six weeks, died in Dedham court today when three youths were strangled on charges in connection with the robbery of a Jamaica Plain school teacher in Dedham last Tuesday.

David R. Winslow, 20, of Pond St., Jamaica Plain, "boy friend" of Miss Dorothy Brennan of Peter Parley rd., Jamaica Plain, for the past six weeks, was arraigned with Harry Belgin, 25, of Oakdale ave., Jamaica Plain, on a charge of robbery.

Allen J. Jay, 26, of Brookline ave., Jamaica Plain, was arraigned on a charge of armed robbery, and the three youths were held in $30,000 each on a continuance until tomorrow.

According to police, Winslow confessed that he planned the holdup in a lonely spot in Dedham, bringing his two friends into the scheme in the role of henchmen. The attractive teacher would have to be the matter past but for her parents' insistence that the three youths be arrested and the consequent investigation led to the alleged confession.

The young woman told a startling story of the manner in which Winslow courted her for six weeks, talked affectionately and apologized for being out of town and forced to accept favors from her.

Their romance culminated in his taking her for a ride in her auto during which the robbery was carried out. He met her after the finished school Tuesday and they went for a ride. After they had driven for a while he stopped to pick up Belgin and Jay, who were standing beside the road, apparently looking for a ride.

They drove to Jenny Lake, Dedham, where the pair drove to the car and forced Winslow to stop the car.

One man took Miss Brennan's purse, which contained the $112 she had received that day as her salary. Winslow had $2 but the pair did not take this. Miss Brennan said.

Harry Bryant, 23, of Starna st., Malden, hurried the story to his death today in the midst of hundreds who walked by in Newspaper Row.

Bryant, a window washer in the office of the Boston Window Cleaning Co. for the past seven weeks, was cleaning windows in the quarters of Boston Newspaperman's Post, American Legion. Police said a metal window ledge gave way.

Max Grossberg, a member of the post, noticing the fall, shouted warnings and saved some pedestrians from probable serious injury.

John Butler, another member of the post, had turned the window washer to be careful.

Traffic was tied up for half an hour.

The victim died a few minutes after the ambulance reached Harry Bryant's home.

About 100 union window washers went out on strike in the city this morning. Union officials said veteran employees objected to the new policy of the university for drunkenness drinking "green men" on the job.

Code Reveals Loves of Young Wynkoop

Chicago, Dec. 1 (IN)—Earle Wynkoop failed in a strenuous court fight to win freedom on bail today under charges of being an accessory to the operating-table murder of his pretty wife, Roberta Gardner Wynkoop.

At the same time Dr. Wynkoop, 32-year-old mother-in-law of the victim, was reported in a similar condition, though still bedfast in the county jail infirmary, where she is held under a grand jury indictment. A constant guard has been set over her.

In Judge David's courtroom brought to light by the prosecution, Attorney Douglas, who had been successful in securing a continuance until December 11, opposing successfully a bid of Attorney Frank J. Tyrrell to secure admission of his client to bail.

Meanwhile, an insight into the pre-marital life of Earle's wife, Roberta, and the philandering tendencies of the young widower were revealed by the coroner's investigators. The suspicion that the handsome Earle was a playboy, with many loves, was verified by a notebook discovered in his room at the strange old W. Marlowe at home of the Wynkoops.

Also discovered in the home, according to the coroner's investigators, was a list of names of the women with whom Earle had been intimate.

The code book, found in the front of the book, revealed the first six of the ten numbers to be: 1—Cherry; 2—Mandy; 3—Bessie; 4—Betty; 5—Lulu; 6—Dorothy.

Three of the names listed, it was learned, were Peggy Boland, Dot Meyers and Florence Connelley. All of these, like the others, were "rated" by code numbers according to the degree of their passion. Another section of the code book was devoted to a list of girlfriends.

BEING IN ALL GILLS. Detectives were immediately assigned the task of interviewing all of those brought into the case with discovery of the Wynkoop notebook in the home of gleaming Mrs. Wynkoop.

It was determined to determine whether a "Wade" mentioned as a companion of Roberta on the day before her wedding in the same person as a "Jack Wade" listed in Earle's notebook.

Also, there is no explanation as yet as to the identity of the person mentioned by Roberta in her diary as "Hugh."

Located by International News Service, Miss Connelley, mentioned in Earle's notebook, said:

"I met Earle casually one day and he immediately asked me to marry him. I told him a lie. He was intensely romantic. He tried to make love to me the first night, and almost proposed. He was very kind and gentle. He was the last night his proposal of marriage seemed serious. I refused. At no time did he mention he was married."

Woman Leader Dies. Columbus, O., Dec. 1 (IN)—One of the most prominent women in the Democratic party, Mrs. Josephine M. McKim, died today at her home in Columbus, Ohio, after an appendicitis operation.

She was 64 years old. She was a member of the Ohio State Bar Association and the American Bar Association. She was also a member of the Ohio State University and the University of Chicago.

No Ban on Rum at Harvard Conant Bars 'Boneheads'

Harvard students may drink alcoholic liquor if they fall down in their studies, says the president. Such was the ruling of James Bryant Conant, new president, today at the same time he barred freshmen who were expelled for over-indulgence.

Through William I. Nichols, secretary for information, President Conant said the three supposed to have been expelled for drinking in the hall and "probably desire to have it believed that they were expelled for drunkenness instead of admitting they were boneheads."

The policy of the university concerning the personal habits of students has not changed, President Conant continued. Harvard students are not condoned drinking. Students are regarded as mature and to know when to stop drinking to excess.

In other words, they are supposed to know their capacity. There is no penalty attached to drinking. There is only one rule and that is that students must meet their academic requirements.

In reply to stories that the gates of the dormitories were closed to check up on over-indulgent students, the statement revealed that the gates have been closed to protect dormitories from sneak freshmen.

Prof. Delmar Leighton, dean of freshmen, issued a statement that was along the line of the university's explanation. The names of the three students who left the university were not revealed. One is reported to be the son of a professor there.

TAVERN DEFEAT SEEN, 22 TO 16

selling hard liquor but this was not changed by the committee. Grave doubts that the Senate and House can concur on the bill regarding retail sales by tomorrow night, even with a night session, was expressed on every hand. Despite a report that the anti-tavern element had gained strength over the holiday, the anti-tavern bloc in the upper branch has retained its strength and is bound to send the bill back to the House with the tavern eliminated altogether, or made provisional upon public vote.

There will be a bitter and probably a prolonged wrangle on the Senate floor over attempts to restore the tavern clause but of the 38 votes, exclusive of the president's, the anti-tavern bloc holds 22, possibly 23.

Debate on the tavern feature will probably continue through the afternoon and tomorrow. It was stated that both branches of the legislature are prepared to remain in session all day tomorrow and during the evening if necessary in order to agree on a control measure.

The Senate bill to license manufacturers and wholesalers was expected by the House today and now waits only Gov. Ely's signature to become law.

HULTMAN HINTS AT TRUMP CARD IN ROW

"Absolutely," said the commissioner, "And what is your policy to be when repeal is effective?" "I cannot answer until I know what the law is going to be. But you may say I'll enforce the old law, that remains on the books, and the new law, whatever it is."

Through Supt. Martin H. King, the commissioner put into effect what at first blush appeared to be the most drastic action ever taken by Boston police to prevent the sale of liquor.

NEW GESTURE FAILS
This was contained in an order, putting sergeants or lieutenant in charge of clubs, with patrolmen on duty outside every unchartered club and suspected speakeasy.

The system, used with modifications by Providence in 1923, might have met with success but for the fact that while police claim jurisdiction over victualers, only three chartered clubs have "victualers" licenses.

In consequence the gesture of the commissioner, like the wholesale raid of Tuesday night, failed largely of its purpose. The only clubs in which police were stationed were the Vanity Fair, Newbury st.; the Mayfair, Broadway, and the Little Madrid, Arlington st.

The general order was based on the law covering victualers' licenses, which permits police to inspect the premises for violations. Unfortunately it developed that only three of the chartered clubs have such licenses, so that the milk, majesty, dominion and power of the law seemed to be somewhat helpless.

At the same time representatives of the three clubs singled out for the housing of police, declared the law says nothing about permanent occupancy, and it was predicted that injunctions would be sought today.

Gov. Ely at his Westfield home today, indicated he was watching the police situation and the tavern fight very closely, even though he was not in Boston.

According to Commissioner Hultman is expected from the governor at any moment.

"How does the exchange of communications stand — does a letter?" he was asked. "I guess I owe him one," said Hultman, "but when sent, this message might be the final one."

WARRANTS TOO OLD
The reason for the municipal court's refusal to grant liquor search warrants this week, it was learned, is that the police presented evidence that was from three to six months old.

In comparison with the large record of convictions, figures for October show that the state police with 250 men, secured 1209 convictions out of 1842 cases in spite of the fact that many of the men were out on strike duty and the Rockport murder.

Harvard Hes Were Drawn by She

Washington, Dec. 1.—Democratic leaders in Congress were frankly concerned today because of the Harvard bill, which proposes to set up the Secretary of Agriculture as director of food, drug and cosmetic advertising.

Senator Copeland and Representative Clegg, both Democrats, and a number of Democratic physicians who were nominal sponsors of the measure, are understood to be uneasy over the antagonism it has aroused in powerful quarters.

The bill is the creation of Reed C. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture and member of President Roosevelt's "Brain Trust," an advertising food, drug and cosmetic committee under the proposed act would be subject to the veto of the agricultural secretary or his assistant, and those who came under the dictator's disfavor, either as author or publisher of forbidden matter, would be subject to heavy fines or imprisonment.

Chicago Crimeless
Chicago, Dec. 1.—Virtually no crime in Chicago was caused by the recent blizzard, according to Al Smith and Morgan.

HULTMAN MUST QUIT

Intentioned person, who could provide over a hundred school clubs with grace but who does not happen to be equipped with the stunguagely and drive which are necessary to dominate a big police department and to cope with the gyrations of the criminal underworld.

Gang Murders Build Case of Incompetency
A resignation by Hultman would ease the Governor's task. Otherwise he will have to rely upon the removal of Hultman by the Governor's Council, which has the right to can up to its neck, as is Hultman, and as independent as a hog on peckhouse ice.

The case against Hultman has been built by the frequent revocations of police incompetency and the frequent dropping of charges of organized crime and organized political influence has up to the city of Boston.

The gang murders of King and the murder of the Boston police who was sprayed with shotgun slugs while he sat in the comfort of a barber's chair, gave to Boston a tint of Chicago gangdom away, the Lombardi and the Keenan was "knocked off" as they say in certain parlance, to identify the common belief that Boston had become a common shooting gallery, devoid of its ancient charm of aristocratic culture and its reputation as a haven of safety for respectable people.

The payroll murder, the Alvin Karpis murder, the Cambridge, Mass. subsequent revelation that a bandit was in the city for the crime he followed his liberty on straw ball after the record of his past escape had been "blown" in the Boston police department, brought Hultman's ability as a police administrator into further disrepute.

Gov. Ely came to the conclusion that the crime ring has fastened its hands desperately upon the throat of Boston, and that law and order were defiled, while the life of the people to the possession of life and property were despoiled. He sent a message to the Legislature, containing the names of 20 "public enemies" that he had some difficulty in obtaining from the police, and demanded the creation of a special and independent commission to determine the cause for the development and continuation of crime in the Greater City.

Fiasco Raids Break Governor's Patience
Perhaps the speakeasy conditions more than anything else have moved him to his judgment of police incompetency. The governor has been in a hotel in Boston, and he is impressed by the fact that the hotels have an investment of $50,000,000 and they pay high taxes, while their trade is impaired by the illegitimate competition of the speakeasies.

The raids of Tuesday night broke the Governor's patience. He had politely ordered Hultman to clean up the city of Boston. Hultman sent out his men to raid some 20 of the best-known night clubs. When the police arrived, the "speaks" had all the serene appearance of a sewing circle. Liquor had been dumped. The customary women of a certain attractiveness were absent from their customary haunts. The bartenders looked upon the police with lamb-like innocence.

There had been a leak somewhere along the line. The Governor believes that a capable and energetic police administrator would have stopped up the hole in his department through which secrets flow to become secrets no longer. Possibly he has in mind the experience of the Soviet statesman who was sentenced to be executed because of his sublime ignorance, he was unwearied that secrets of state were trickling out of Moscow in the most foreign legations.

At the time of this notorious police failure, Gov. Ely had upon his desk a report from the Crime Commission which revealed a rambling in eastern Massachusetts that had a business of $5,000,000 a year and which can show a trail in black ink this year when

STRIKERS SUIT TO NEW JUDGE

Lowell means arguments by the striking Truckmen's Union here for removal of the equity suit of the Motor Truck Association of western Massachusetts from the state to the federal courts, will have to be renewed before the state judge. Judge Lowell had taken the case under advisement when his illness prevented further action.

Judge H. P. Williams of Superior Court, had granted an injunction to the truck owners and counsel for the strikers filed a motion to transfer the case to federal jurisdiction on the ground that a federal question was involved because the case had been taken to the U. S. conciliation board, Counsel for the strikers had taken the case had been started in the state courts it should be completed there.

NAZIS BEHEAD 6 REDS; PRESTS ARE JAILED

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

Universal Service Special Cable, Berlin, Dec. 1.—Germany today established a new record for wholesale executions in one day.

With a chill blast from the Rhine river enveloping the Cologne prison, causing the officially required spectators to shiver until their teeth rattled, six communists were beheaded in the prison courtyard in rapid succession.

The communists were convicted of killing two Nazi storm troopers last January. Two of them did the shooting. The others were with them. Conviction of sentence to life imprisonment was refused.

Nineteen other condemned men now await execution. The high executioner wore the customary formal full evening dress, top hat, and gloves. The youngest of the communists was 21, the oldest 25.

The mass execution recalled Hitler's warning that "those will roll in the sand when I am Chancellor."

Meanwhile, numerous Catholic priests were arrested in Munich today "for spreading already lies among the population." An official announcement tonight said:

"The arrests were made in the interest of the concordat (with the Vatican) which forbids priests political activity."

With conservative Protestants up in arms over proposed Nazi reforms in the Protestant church, the arrests are expected to raise a Catholic storm. The widespread confusion and excitement in church circles is believed maneuvering the government into a critical position, and the intervention of Chancellor Hitler is reported imminent.

It was announced today that Friedrich Müller of the Protestant church, who was scheduled officially to assume office Sunday, has indefinitely postponed the ceremony, "owing to the situation created by the resignation of the church ministry," high ecclesiastical council of the Protestant church.

TEACHER DYING OF POISON

had been a death—not that Miss Waldstein was planning her own. They were a little puzzled, perhaps, at not getting the business at the rock bottom price in which Miss Waldstein was interested.

Today, however, they got notice she had awarded them the job, a little prematurely, but even so the doctors believe, there will be a job.

WANTS QUICK FUNERAL
The notice was a letter to Graham's containing a $50 money order, and informing them that she was killing herself, requesting a quick funeral with no relatives present and cremation.

"As for my ashes, you can throw them on the dump heaps for all I care . . ."

The letter was opened by William Wallace of the undertaking establishment.

In accordance with instructions it contained, Wallace communicated with Miss Waldstein's brother, William Waldstein, an attorney at a Beacon at Waldstein and Wallace rushed to the Brighton apartment house.

WINDOW IS USED
There was no response to their knocks on the door of the teacher's apartment and the janitor wouldn't let them break the lock. So all three climbed in a window from the fire escape.

They found the bathroom door locked and there again the reason janitor prevailed against their desire to destroy property. She had phoned police. Police turned a deaf ear to the janitor and broke down the bathroom door.

Miss Waldstein appeared to be slightly conscious. Her mouth was just above the water. When they lifted her out she was unconscious, however, and at the hospital it was said her condition was extremely critical.

Her letter to the undertaker followed:

"Gentlemen. Two weeks ago we talked about cremation and funeral arrangements. You spoke about special cremation service for $100."

"By the time you receive this I shall be a widow. I wish to be cremated and I don't trust anyone else to carry out my wishes. I appeal to you to carry out my plan."

Including a $50 money order to be left on deposit until my estate is settled, shall have to ask my brothers to lend me the balance because I felt that they wouldn't know my wishes to be cremated."

"If you and they cannot agree on this unusual request, you may undoubtedly arrange the money order over to one of them."

WOULD BAR RELATIVES
When I spoke to you about cremation, but now I do not care where I'm cremated. I'm not fussy about Forest Hills. I understand there is a municipal crematory and I am willing that it should take place there."

"I want a cheap, quick burial service—so quickly as possible. Sincerely—Mary M. Waldstein."

Sitkin's Eruption Rocks Aleutian Isle

Unsu Harbor, Alaska, Dec. 1 (AP)—Violent eruption of the great Sitkin volcano rocked the tiny island of Kanaga in the southern most tip of the Aleutians, according to advices received here today.

Massive clouds of smoke and lava thundered into the sky this morning and then rumbled down the sides of the smoking volcano which has been rumbling warnings for three days.

17 Drown, 150 Missing in Black Sea Storm

Istanbul, Turkey, Dec. 1 (AP)—Seventeen persons were drowned, 150 were missing and damage estimated at $225,000 was done at Sam-sun today by a storm which raged violently along the whole Black Sea coast.

Huge waves destroyed 57 fishing and motorboats, according to reports reaching here from the stricken area. Large sections of the city of Samsun were under water.

3 Towns Fight Fire in Wellesley

Investigation was being made today of the fire which threatened for a time to spread through a large block of stores in Wellesley, Mass., and caused $7000 damage before it was brought under control.

Apparatus from Newton, Needham and Mattick joined the Wellesley department in fighting the blaze, which started in the rear of a market in the block of stores.

11 SWARTMORE OFFICIALS ASK GOLD RETURN

Swartmore, Pa., Dec. 1 (AP)—With a warning that President Roosevelt's monetary policy is moving toward inflation of "alarming proportions," 11 social science professors of Swartmore College urge immediate return to the gold standard "although not necessarily with a dollar of the former gold content."

In a statement which they asserted was "based on behalf of Wall Street, but on behalf of the small income receivers" the savants said the present monetary policy of the national administration will discredit its other programs.

"We believe in many of the policies of the government, both economic and non-economic," the statement said. "We approve of many of the ends sought by advocates of the monetary policy. We recognize that there are many degrees of 'inflation' and that as yet the government may be said to have inflated to a relatively slight degree."

OVER-SPENDING FEARED
"But we are convinced that the government policy is moving rapidly in the direction of an inflation of alarming proportions. This statement can only suggest the basis of our protest."

"The chief danger of present developments, however, is that they point toward too much spending of a highly sort."

"People who get a dollar may come to feel they must spend it immediately, for fear it will be worth less tomorrow."

"Government borrowing from the banks for the sake of temporarily financing private business may become so large as to impair federal credit and commercial bank safety for the future."

GOLD STANDARD ASKED
The sponsors of the statement are Prof. Herbert F. Fraser, Clair Wilcox and Patrick Murphy Main of the department of economics; J. Ronald Pennock, Frances E. Reinhold and Harold E. H. Speight, department of political science; Troyer B. Anderson, department of history; Brand Blanchard, John W. Nason and Frances Blanchard, department of philosophy; and Robert B. McLeod, department of psychology.

"As a monetary program to provide a background for such attacks on maladjustments," the statement said, "we suggest the following:

"Announce an immediate return to the gold standard, although not necessarily with a dollar of the former gold content, or with details of operation exactly as before; continue such activities as the RFC (Reconstruction Finance Corporation), the Public Works Administration and unemployment relief, but almost strictly within the limits set by the government's ability to borrow from the ultimate investor."

Prof. J. H. Rogers' Gold Price Views Sought
New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Since the defections from the Washington financial brain trust of Dr. O. M. W. Sprague and James P. Warburg, financial quarters have been endeavoring to learn the monetary theories of Prof. James Harvey Rogers.

With Prof. George F. Warren, of Cornell, generally regarded as the acolyte with his plan to influence the price level through manipulation of the gold price, the question has arisen, what about the Yale economist, Prof. Rogers, who shares an office with the Cornell expert in Washington?

Since Rogers was called in, last July, he has issued only one public statement, and that in reply to Dr. Sprague's criticism of the dollar control program when he resigned from the treasury last week. He warned that if uncontrolled inflation should ensue, the crisis would be upon those who try to sabotage the present policy. He explained that the control was not different from that exercised over the franc by the French authorities before post-war stabilization. Nowhere in his statement, however, did he endorse the so-called commodity dollar espoused by Prof. Warren.

Crimson Finds New Cracks in Harvard Buildings

Investigation of Harvard's new buildings, conducted by the Harvard Crimson, continues to reveal further cracks and weaknesses that may indicate woefully improper construction methods, the undergraduate publication said today.

Trouble with mortar between bricks, as found in the Business School buildings, has also been discovered in houses and on stone facings of Dunster House gates, the paper states. In most cases mortar has dried up and fallen away, exposing in some cases concrete structure to decay. It is said. The university maintenance department is now engaged in repairing these faults. It was also found by the Crimson that wood has pulled away from bricks in round tops of some windows in the houses. It is necessary to preclude these openings to keep out wind and water.

COST OF LIVING POLICY BASE

Washington, Dec. 1 (U.S.)—A survey of living costs in various cities, which will determine whether the Federal government will contribute to increased purchasing power through raising salaries of Federal employees, is about completed, it is learned.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Statistics is finishing up its survey in Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Baltimore and New Orleans. A similar survey here has already been completed.

Primarily undertaken to guide President Roosevelt in setting the Federal salary scale for the six months period beginning January 1, the survey will have some bearing on the administration's money policy program, it is believed.

Woman Breaks Nose in Randolph Crash

Randolph, Dec. 1—Mrs. Clarence Patnaude, 45, of 29 Howard st., Brockton, is at the Brockton Hospital suffering from injuries received in an auto accident on South Main st. when a tire on her car blew out and the machine crashed into a tree. She suffered a broken nose and cuts and lacerations.

"He only does whatever he wants to. I wish he would sleep in the day time, but he doesn't want to."
For 12 hours yesterday the mother asked the boy questions once every two minutes, answering every question for him, the arrogantly proud father occasionally suggesting a better answer, all in baby talk.

If the young woman who thinks she must have "a career" could wait that father, mother and baby for half an hour, she would know that a baby is the best career for any girl.

Coming out of San Antonio, where W. R. Hearst's paper, "The Light," managed by McIntosh, publisher, and Allison, editor, leads in city circulation, you travel two miles through Vice-President Garner's ranch, just west of his home town, Uvalde. On that well-kept ranch are horses, cattle, sheep and many goats. This is a great country, exporting quantities of mohair. Back in Uvalde, the Vice-President's son is president of the bank, so you may learn out here how well Mr. Garner understands business, and how thoroughly he attends to it.

To the south are mountains of asphalt, with which the roads are coated. Texas has everything, including quicksilver mines and energetic young ladies—one of them telegraphs: "Will you give a Texas newspaper girl a break and give her an interview as your train goes through?" You say, "Yes, delighted," and at the bustling town of Del Rio, Tex., a young girl comes aboard representing Mr. Edward J. Travelstead's excellently edited Del Rio Evening News. Too thin by 15 pounds, and energetic, her name is Irma Jo Fleetwood. Many Texas girls are named Irma and Jo.

When you suggest with heavy middle-aged gallantry that her mother made a mistake leaving out the "V," which would have made her name Irma Joy Fleetwood, the young lady brushes that aside with "That's old; I'm grateful she didn't add an 'e,' which would have made me 'Irma Jo Fleetwood.'" It is told that that girl makes the best newspaper "men."

The two best American reporters in 100 years were Nellie Bly who went around the World beating all records, and is with Jules Verne above, and Dorothy Dick, known to New Orleans as Mrs. Gilmer, young and doing her best work.

It would be a pleasure to tell you at length about the frog farmer, a little way back at Rayne, La., who ships six to eight barrels of frogs legs every week. He raises them in a big pond with cement edges and every thirty minutes walks around the pond pulling the frogs back into the water with a wooden rake.

They climb up, gather in piles and would smother each other. Many citizens catch wild frogs for him in the swamps, luring them with flashlights, then "giggling" them. A "gig" is a small harpoon. A citizen from Portland, Oregon, has taken home with him two crates of bull frogs picked in wet moss, one crate of females, one of males, and hopes they will do as well there as in Louisiana. Also the two colored ladies, at Berwick chatting with each other from their cottage doors, 300 feet apart, and the wild excitement when the Pullman car porter in all his silver buttoned grandeur walked down from the train to say "honey" and a still younger colored woman, all dressed up came out to take command of the situation that should be related at length. Such laughter the whites do not know, but you cannot tell everything.

NET STAR BALKS FIRE ROUTS TEAM AT GUARD FROM HOME

Reports that Miss Helen Jacobs had received several threatening letters and was under police guard as a consequence were denied today by the youthful tennis star.

Miss Jacobs, who is staying at the home of Miss Anna Friend, in Piggrim rd., Melrose, declared she had not asked for police protection and added that she feared no violence.

"There is no guard on the house, or with me," she said. "I have not asked for one and I do not intend to. I am not afraid."

Ten persons including several children were forced to flee when a two alarm fire swept the two- and a half story wooden building at Broadway and Mt. Pleasant st., at the Somerville-Charlestown line.

Mrs. Mary E. Clifford, living on the second floor of the building next door, carried her sleeping grandchild to the street when smoke from the fire filled the building. Firemen from Somerville, Everett and Charlestown extinguished the blaze with a loss of $200.

jar and bump and bounce abolished

MARKING its 25th Anniversary, General Motors pioneers another great advance in motoring comfort—the abolition of jar and bump and bounce.

After more than two years of engineering research and after thousands of miles of testing on the Proving Ground, a radically new method has been worked out for joining the front wheels of the automobile to the chassis. The effect is to make it possible for each wheel to step over

HOW KNEE-ACTION WHEELS WORK

Your present car is stiff-legged. Stiff front springs are rigidly joined by a beam front axle. So when you hit a bump the front of the car bounces, the rear pinches, and you are jostled.

See how serenely a man meets a bump. One knee bends easily, lifting its leg. The other, set in not affected; equilibrium is undisturbed. The knee, not the body, takes the jar.

New, 1934—no more beam axle, no stiff springs. The wheel, flexibly mounted on its own self-sprung, rises and falls like a knee to soak up the shocks, while the car rides on.

a bump or a hole so that the wheel instead of the passenger takes the jar. We have called this "giving the car Knee-Action Wheels."

This is no minor improvement over the cars of 1933, but a revolutionary change in automobile design, worthy to rank with the introduction of the self-starter by Cadillac in 1912, the adoption of Four-Wheel Brakes by Buick in 1924, and the abolition of drafts by Fisher in 1933. Go as soon as you can and drive a 1934 Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Buick, La Salle or Cadillac.

To attempt to describe the difference in comfort, especially on the back seat, is impossible. Steering is effortless; safety is much enhanced; the life of the car lengthened. Just the right amount of ventilation reaches you through the controlled no-draft ventilation of Fisher; just the speed that suits you rolls silently beneath your wheels. The ups and downs are so nearly banished by the Knee-Action Wheels that your movement is not a ride—it's a glide.

ing is vividly pictured as it was played before a crowd of 50,000 persons at Cambridge. The Bulldog's sensational attempts to keep every nerve to keep their opponents back, carried to a thrill all the way through. Brilliant plays by Wells, Litman, Haley and Crocker are featured.

At the Bowdoin Sq. special attention is given to the vaudeville bill. Beginning tomorrow, the six acts include Vic Binn's Revue, dancers; Don Humbert and Rita Coughlin, radio favorites; Murrand and Girtin, cymbists; the "Three Sheiks"; the Four Ruklenders, singers and comedians, and Kay Gilbert, "blues" vocalist.

Florence O'Denishawn Now Doing Dance Specialty of Old Musical Classic

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Giving me something to remember prohibition by is the Cocoanut Grove in Division 4 where it is impossible to be a drinker unless you bring it with you. That stands for this week's status. Next week it should be something different again, and corker should be popping, if repeal comes officially to Massachusetts. The Cocoanut Grove is a night club operated by Barnett Welansky, a lawyer by day (and a good one) and a boniface by night, and a good one Angelo M. (Call Angelo) Lipit is the proprietor's first lieutenant. Dapper and mustached, Angelo is a Boston fixture. It was he, for instance, who asked by letter that Capt. Jerry Gullivan, former chief of Division 4, and then transferred to South Boston and finally retired by his request, grant a charter to the Mayfair.

He is a happy soul and presides over an elaborate establishment. A bee for industry, Angelo buys the fadder, bossa chiefs, waiters and busboys, and then sits up to greet customers at the entrance. Eighteen hours in his daily shift. His income is large under prohibition and should be huge a week or so from today. But Angelo has a bitterness. For four long years a greeter and a personality, he has posed with other celebrities, mainly of the arts, exactly 71 times. Photographers from every Boston newspaper have posed him painstakingly and exploited their bulbs in his blinking eyes. Not once has he borne a false appearance, highlighted in the shadows of a halftone, in print. This will be remedied next week when, the dilute of Biscotti having decided to end All Time About the Town, Angelo and his Cocoanut Grove will become news because the Grove is the only bona-fide, non-alcoholic nightclub in the city (exclusive of hotel) and seems destined to get a license.

Perfect Dance Team
The Cocoanut Grove as it looked over the holiday in a sense of a capacity crowd is really something to remember prohibition by. What bottles there were under the tables. What entertainment it had was Florence O'Denishawn, the graceful sylph of the famous Music Box Revue, and Charles Columbus, also of the old Music Box, have paired in a marvelous dancing act. They do a modernist, contorted version of the classic "St. Louis Blues." It is startling and so perfect that an onlooker yawns for the annihilator of the called ballroom specialties based on a young man's desire to burne quality him as a 1933 Vermont Cattle and that with a slight twist is an O'Denishawn.

It seems nice to be able to write about O'Denishawn and Columbus and know that the paragraphs will get a wide audience. It was once their public routine. It was easy to place pictures of Florence and to have her subject reach a reading public. Mr. Columbus, who is a hardy a subject. He was then the partner of Dorothy Dixley, who was killed in an accident, and Dorothy Dixley, who married a multimillionaire, was the feminine third of their act. We talked about that and Dorothy Dixley last night and told off the names of the cast.

They included: Zannie Brice, Clark and McCullough, Grace Moore, John Steward, Florence O'Denishawn, Frank Tinney, Phil Baker, Hugh (Clem) and Santley, Ivy Sawyer, Bob Bunchley, the Box Sisters, and Lora Sanderson. It was a good show, and the cost approximately $2000. It played at the Music Box Theater to continual capacity at $3.50 per orchestra chair.

Tonight of the Town
With stardom every night, the show grossed about $10,000 a week. The average profit was between $300 and $500 a week, something that Sam H. Harris and Irving Berlin failed to decide this was not good business. Most of the chorus girls came to the theater in imported cars. Claire Luce, one of the minor principals who is about to arrive here, came in the subway. But Miss O'Denishawn was the toast of the town, in the greatest second act opening ever conceived for a musical show. It was a number called the "Underneath Ballad" and it was entered from a show in a costume permitting her complete range of movement in event she wished to win.

Another number led by Miss O'Denishawn was entitled "Maid of Dreams," a biting tune by Amusements
